

STRATEGIES FOR SUCCESS: BOUNDARIES FOR THE GIFTED

An Evening with the Gifted Guru:

Lisa Van Gemert

-Author of the book, Perfectionism: Practical Strategies for Managing Never Good Enough.

While gifted youth need more leeway and independence at earlier ages than do their typical learner peers, that doesn't mean they need less parenting. Identifying and sustaining appropriate boundaries with peers, adult interaction, and even electronics can challenge the best and most dedicated of parents.

Using a metaphor of fences, learn the key ideas parents need to find and maintain suitable guidelines for their children without dampening the child's spirits or feeling like they've surrendered all control to their kids.
